Numb. 377.

THE Pennſylvania GAZETTE.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From February 19. to February 25. 1735,6.

London, November 3.

ON Sunday arrived the important Advice, that Marſhal Coigny having retreated from the Banks of the Eſch, which Lieutenant-General Nangis had croſs'd the 21ſt, and was driven back with Loſs by the Enemy, and from whence his Excellency had the Pleaſure of viewing the Imperial Army the 23d, without daring to attack it, had been obliged on the 23d and 24th to detach forty nine Squadrons to the Meuſe and Thionville for want of Forage: That General Seckendorff having gained Courage by the Advantage he had over the French in the Skirmiſh, and in ſeeing their Generals intimidated, had left the Abbey of Chauſen, paſs'd the Eſch and the Salm, and was advanced to the Banks of Quill, on the oppoſite Side of which lay the French Army: That on the 27th the two Armies were again in ſight of each other, but that Marſhal Coigny did not think proper to ſtand his Ground, repaſs'd the Moſelle, drew up his Bridges after him, and encamped under the Cannon of Treves: That General Seckendorff thereupon paſs'd the Quill, and took Poſſeſſion of ſome Eminences which command the City of Treves; and that he was preparing to cannonade the French Army who were in the utmoſt Confuſion, and had ſent for all their Troops to rejoin them with all haſte.

The Court has received an Account, that in the late Action beetween Count Seckendorff and Marſhal Coigny, Count Henry Naſſau de Auverquerque, Lieutenant in the Coldſtream Regiment of Foot Guards, Nephew and Heir Apparent to the Earl of Grantham, was killed by a Cannon Ball; he having made the Campaign as a Volunteer in the Imperial Army on the Rhine.

Lord Primroſe, Nephew to the Earl of Stair, and who was Captain of Horſe of Ireland, alſo a Volunteer in the Imperial Army, is dangerouſly wounded.

The Germans loſt a great Number of General and other Officers. General Diemar's Regiment did Wonders during the Action, the General expoſing himſelf in the thickeſt of the Fires, and received no Hurt.

The French left ſeveral Hundred Men dead on the Spot.

On Thurſday laſt, his Majeſty's Birth-day, the Noblemen and Gentlemen were chiefly at court in brown coloured flowered Velvets, or dark Cloath Coats, laced with Gold and Silver, or plain Velvets, of various Colours, and Breeches of the ſame; their Waiſtcoats were either Gold Stuff, or rich flower'd Silks, of a large Pattern with a white Ground; the Make much the ſame as has been worn ſome time, only many had open Sleeves to their Coats: Their Tye-Wigs were with large Curls, ſetting forward, and riſing from the Forehead, though not very high, the Ties were thick, and longer than of late, and both behind; ſome few had Bag-Wigs.

The Ladies wore flowered Silks of various Sorts, of a large Patrern, but moſtly with a white Ground, and the Make much the ſame as on her Majeſty's Birth-Day, with wide ſhort Sleeves, and ſhort Petticoats; their Gowns were pinned up variouſly behind, though moſtly narrow; ſome few had Silver or Gold Nets on their Petticoats, and to their Facings and Robing; and ſome had Gold and Silver ſet on their Gown Sleeves, like Flounces: They wore chiefly fine ſcalloped laced Heads, and dreſſed moſtly Engliſh; ſome few had their hair curled down the Sides; but moſt of them had it pinned up quite ſtrait; and almoſt all of them with Powder, both before and behind; ſome few had their Heads made up Dutch, ſome with Cockades of Ribbon on the Side, and others with made Flowers; they wore treble ſcalloped laced Ruffles, one Fall tacked up before, and two down, but all 3 down behind, altho' ſome few had two Falls tack't up, and one down before: Laced Tippets were much wore; ſome had Diamond Solitairs to hook them together; others had their Jewels made up like Bows and Ends: Thoſe without Tippets had moſtly broad broad laced Tuckers, with Diamond Necklaces and Ear-Rings. Diamond Buckles were much wore in the Shoes both of the Gentlemen and Ladies, and the whole appeared extreamly grand.

Lord Caſtlemain made a very ſplendid Appearance among the young Noblemen, in a rich Gold Stuff Coat, &c. as Lady Harcourt did among the Ladies in a white ground rich Silk, embolſed with Gold and Silver, and fine coloured Flowers, a large Pattern, exceeding rich and genteel; and her Ladyſhip had exceeding fine Jewels on of very great Value.

The Ball on Thurſday Night was opened with French Dancing, by his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, who danced with her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Amelia, and then his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales danced with her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Carolina; the Country Dances were began by his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales, with the Counteſs of Pembroke; His Majeſty left the Ball-Room a little after Twelve, and ſoon after the Company broke up.

We hear by the Eagle, Capt. Ruſſell, who arrived at Rotterdam from the South-Sea, that the Privateers are very numerous, and that a Dutch Gally, and an Engliſh Ship were taken the 11th of March laſt, and they tortured the Captains of the ſaid Ships, in order to diſcover the Money: And the 26th of July the Maſter of the Eagle was chaſed by two of the ſaid Privateers, but being the beſt Sailor, had the good Fortune to eſcape. He was trading in Company with the ſaid Ships on the Coaſt ſince the Month of November 1734, when they ſunk one of the Privateers, belonging to the Havanna, Captain Salvador Rico. The Eagle found Opportunity to take on board two Peruvian Merchants, with 50000 Pieces of Eight in Silver Bars, 20 lb. of Gold in Powder, and a vaſt Quantity of Peruvian Pieces of Eight.

There is a Report that the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wager, Kt. Horatio Walpole, Eſq; Lieutenant General Wade, the Hon. William Connolly, Eſq; and Henry Bromely, Eſq; will be created Peers of the Realm.

They write from Cadiz the 18th ult. N. S. that an Order from Court arrived there the Day before, for delivering the Treaſure lately brought from La Vera Cruz, on paying 5 per Cent. Indulto, 4 per Cent. for ſupporting Guard de Coſtas, 1 per Cent. Freight, and 1 per Cent. Conſulado. The Flota was not ſailed.

They write from Briſtol, that Party Violence is grown to ſuch a height there, that on Thurſday laſt, when the Magiſtrates and the other Gentlemen of the City were met at the Council Houſe to celebrate the Evening, and had made a fine Illumination, repreſenting his Majeſty's Name in Cypher, and under it an Orange, from whence iſſued a Spear wounding a Dragon (Hieroglyphicks underſtood with no great Difficulty) the Mob roſe and pelted out the Lights with Dirt and Stones; but ſeveral of the Rioters have been ſince diſcovered and taken into Cuſtody.

Nov. 6. The Letters from all Parts confirm the Suſpenſion of Arms, and that in Conſequence of it, the two French Partizans taken by the Imperialiſts about three Weeks ago, have been already ſet at Liberty. The French and Imperial Generals had appointed a Meeting at Waghouſell near Philipsburgh, to regulate mutually the Winter Quarters which each Army ſhould poſſeſs, without diſturbing one another.

They write from Manheim, that the Damages done the Palatinate this Campaign, by the French and Germans, amount, by an honeſt Computation, to little leſs than 50,000 l. ſterling: That the former being preſs'd to pay the Sum charged to their Account, returned the Elector ſo very ſlight an Anſwer, that his Highneſs makes loud Complaints of the Injuſtice done him.

Thamas Kouli Kan has finiſhed the Conqueſt of Georgia by the Reduction of Tiſſils, and is directing his Arms againſt other Countries poſſeſſed by the Turks. 'Tis aſſured that he will make Peace with the Port upon no Terms whatever, but the entire Reſtitution of all the Provinces formerly ravaged from Perſia.

Our Accounts from Naples are very remarkable; they adviſe, that a Conſpiracy had been formed there by a Count and three Plebeians, to ſeize Don Carlos as he was hunting, whip him into Boat, and convey him to the Imperialiſts at Trieſte. This Plot, how ridiculous ſoever, has very ſerious Conſequences, for the four Conſpirators are in Priſon, and to be put to the ſevereſt Torture, in order to oblige them to diſcover the Author of the Project.

We hear by a private Letter from Turin, that ſince the King of Sardinia arrived there, the Right Hon. the Earl of Eſſex is treated with great Diſtinction, and has more Reſpect than formerly pay'd his Commiſſion. The ſame Letters aſſure us, that his Sardinian Majeſty has declared his Intention to make no other Campaign in Lombardy, the Poſſeſſion of the Milaneſe having been abſolutely denied him by the Courts of France and Spain.

Yeſterday Morning a well-dreſſed Man was found drowned in a Pond near Magdalen Church in Southwark, and being ſearched, a Paper was found in his Pocket with theſe Words: I am Auſtin Parker, and came to England the 14th of October, 1735, from France, where I have been from my Infancy with my Parents; and being in Want, took one of the Engliſh Fancies, that is, to drown myſelf.

Extract of a Letter (ſaid to come) from Paris, October 15.

THE Maritime Powers, by deſire of his Imperial Majeſty, continue their Inſtances, that the Siege of Mantua be laid aſide this Year; which is the Reaſon the Duke of Montemar has not yet begun it.

The States-General inſiſt, that the Emperor countermand the 30,000 Men under Count Seckendorff, but his Imperial Majeſty ſeems inflexible; and has declared to their High Mightineſſes by his his Minister at the Hague, That unless the Dutch would cover the Frontiers of Flanders with the like Number of Troops, he was resolved to do it himself, and even take Possession of the Barrier Towns; seeing by their High Mightinesses Resolutions in the late Assembly, they rather favour'd the Allies, instead of taking the propereſt Measures to oppose their Progress: Upon which their Deputy was pleased to answer, That the States were resolved to observe an exact Neutrality, and had refused to enter into the Quadruple Alliance, so much talk'd of to be on foot at the Court of Hanover, on that Account.

Yesterday his most Christian Majesty received an Express from M. de Chavigny at Hanover; after which he sent positive Orders to all the Troops in Normandy, Picardy, and adjacent Provinces, to repair forthwith to the Frontiers of Flanders, which with the Troops already there, will compose a Body equal to that of Count Seckendorff.

London, Octob. 31. The most material Advices of all brought by this Mail, are those from Constantinople of the 30th of August, which left the People in the greatest Disgust and Consternation, not only for the victorious Progress of Kouli-Kan, who had taken Genghe in Georgia, besieged Treflis, and was marching to lay Siege likewise to Erivan; but for a great Fire which happened there on the 27th, continued till next Morning, and consumed above Three Hundred Houses and Shops. It broke out almost at one Time in three different Parts of the City, but burnt with most Fury in the Street called Chiaus Bass near the Seraglio. Thirty Houses were consumed in the Street of Shzade; twenty in the Quarter of the seven Towers: and Part of the Castle of Europe on the Canal of the Black Sea, near the Dardanelles, was also reduced to Ashes. The extraordinary Motions, as well a tumultuous Outcries during the Fire, and other Circumstances, left no Room to doubt, that the Incendiaries hoped to promote a general Insurrection, and to restore Sultan Achmet; wherefore the Grand Seignior went out of the Seraglio, with all his Ministers, chief Officers, and a Guard of Janizaries and Spahis, into all Places where the Fire was, and and gave his Orders to extinguish it, while several Detachments of Janizaries scowered through the principal Streets and obliged the Inhabitants to keep to their own Houses. 'Twas reported, that there was another Fire at the same Hour at Adrianople. Several Persons were on this Occasion taken up and immediately strangled. In short, the Dispositions of the Populace to a general Revolt, were so manifest, that it determined the Porte to recal the only Man who had the most constant Share of their Confidence and Respect, viz. the famous Giaour Coggia, chief Admiral of the Ottoman Empire, who has been several Times in Disgrace; but whose Life and Fortune his Enemies never yet ventured to lay hold on. This Admiral is accordingly arrived with his Squadron in the Dardanelles.

From Rome they write, that General Forster, so well known at Preston, and now called Lord Forster, was lately honoured by his most Christian Majesty with the Cross of St. Louis, by the Hand of the Duke de St. Aignan, his Ambassador there; and that the next Day his Excellency went to visit the Chevalier de St. George, with whom he had a long private Audience.

NEW-YORK, Feb. 17.

On the 22d of January the Ship George, William Mirick Commander, arrived at Boston from London, by whom came Letters of the 14th of October, advising that the Publick Affairs remain in the like Situation they have been for a long time; That the King is strongly inclined to assist the Emperor, and preserve the Ballance of Power, but the grand Obstacle is the backwardness of the Dutch; some say, their great Men are apprehensive that the War may open a door to let in a Stadholder upon them, whereby their High Mightinesses may come to be stript of much of the Authority they now exercise, and which they are not willing to part with.

We have also Advice, That the Dutch have Renewed their Neutrality with France, and say, They will have nothing to do with the Commotions in Europe.

Sir John Norris has appointed the Lord Augustus Fitz Roy, 2d Son to his Grace the Duke of Grafton, jun. Lieutenant of his Majesty's Ship the Grafton.

We have Advice, That the Right Honourable the Lady Fitz Roy (Daughter of his Excellency Col. Cosby, Governor of New-York) is brought to Bed of her second Son.
